Kevin L. Hoover

MAD RIVER UNION

ARCATA – O say, does that Earth-spangled banner yet wave o’er the Plaza? It does, though its time atop city flagpoles may be short, now that placing the Earth flag above the U.S. flag has been ruled illegal in court.

A majority (52.31 percent) of Arcata voters approved Measure M, which requires that the City of Arcata fly the Earth flag above all others on its three flagpoles, in November, 2022, and since Dec. 16 of that year, the blue marble has reigned supreme.

But the fly in the ointment was a finding by the city attorney that having the Earth flag on top violates state law – an argument

Humboldt Hot Air gets FCC broadcast OK

ARCATA – What started in an Old Creamery supply closet as a modest Internet streaming operation has blossomed into a vital new community resource and institution. And soon, with the FCC’s recent approval, Humboldt Hot Air will be on the air as KHHA-LP FM 94.7.

Where the station attracted a number of disenfranchised KHSU talent after that station dismissed its cadre of volunteers, it has organically grown to offer a broad range of eclectic, grassroots local programming.

The station now boasts more than 60 volunteer DJs, an advisory board and even a handy phone app.

Station Manager Neroli Devaney has guided the station since its inception two years ago, operating as a non-profit program of Arcata Playhouse. The tiny station’s cozy, two-room studio is now located across the gravel driveway from the Old Creamery building, remodeled by Playhouse Facilities Manager James Hildebrand and others. A small reception area leads to the bedroom-sized broadcast studio where an assortment of equipment allows the DJs and other air talent to work their magic.

The next expansion won’t be out, but up, with installation of a 100-watt FM broadcast antenna atop the Creamery. A wireless bridge will relay the KHHA signal to the antenna.

“One of the things about low-power FM stations is that the antenna is very, very small,” Devaney said. “It’s actually going to be smaller than the pole that’s already up there – you may not even be able to see it from the street.”

Public input sought for tiny house, emergency housing villages draft ordinance

COUNTY OF HUMBOLDT

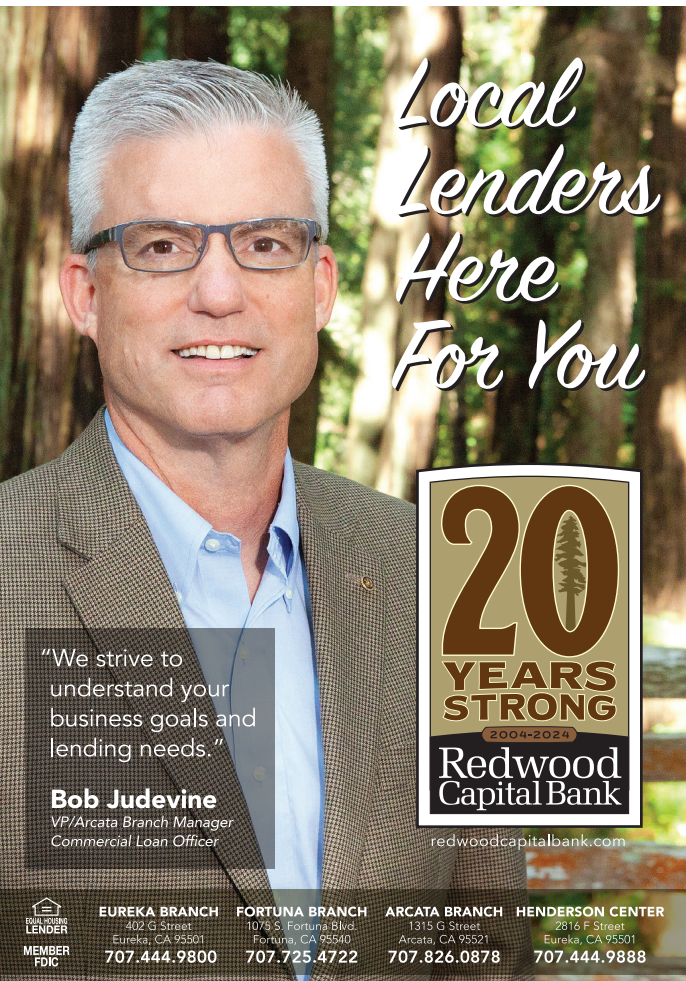

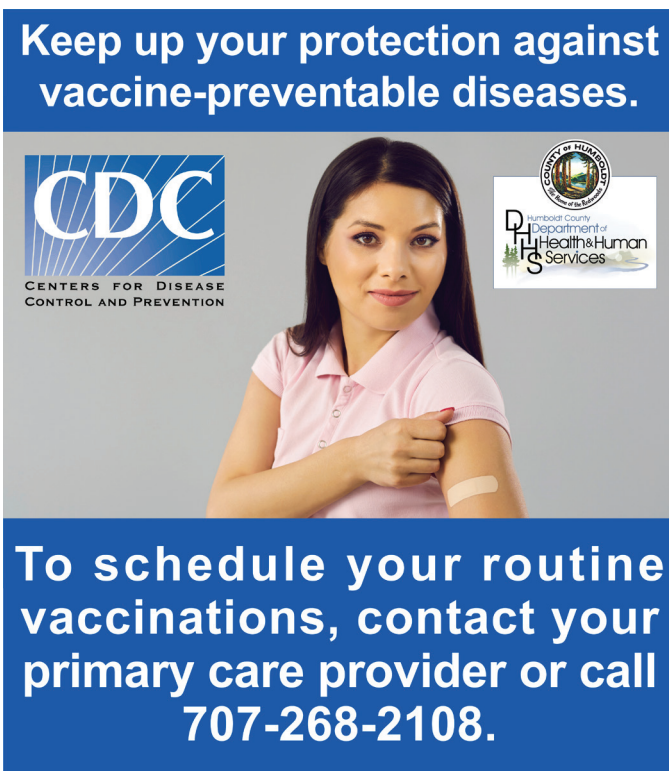

HUMBOLDT – If you are interested in tiny house villages and emergency housing villages in Humboldt County, consider attending a Tiny House Villages & Emergency Housing Villages Workshop to share your input with the Humboldt County Planning Commission on Thursday, April 18.

For more information.

Currently, multiple small residential units on a single parcel are not recognized in the county’s zoning regulations, so an ordinance is needed to allow tiny house villages and emergency villages in unincorporated Humboldt County.

Providence St. Joe grants $25K to Life Plan Humboldt

MAD RIVER UNION

EUREKA – Providence is excited to announce that we have awarded a grant of $25,000 to Life Plan Humboldt, an organization dedicated to creating thriving communities for active older adults that will support independence, socialization, intellectual stimulation, and community involvement. The contribution is part of Providence's ongoing commitment to supporting like-minded organizations that align with our Mission and values.

A check presentation ceremony took place Monday, April 1 at St. Joseph Hospital. Representatives from St. Joseph Hospital and Life Plan Humboldt were in attendance to celebrate this exciting resource of our community.

"As Providence St. Joseph Hospital in Eureka and Providence Redwood Memorial Hospital continue to offer high quality acute care to our North Coast communities, we also realize the importance of aging in place and helping community members stay healthy at home," said Providence Community Health Investment Director, Martha Shanahan. "We applaud the efforts of Life Plan Humboldt to bring the first ever planned community for seniors to Humboldt County."

According to Life Plan Humboldt, the benefits to Humboldt County will be many: seniors can stay socially connected as they age; family caregivers will take comfort that their relatives are supported when health needs arise; housing stock will increase for working families; and approximately 60 good jobs will be created.

"Life Plan Humboldt is thrilled to receive this support from Providence to help us build a not-for-profit, resident led, mixed income community for residents 60 and older," said Life Plan Humboldt President, Ann Lindsay. "We will offer independent private residences, shared dining and activities, health care support, assisted living and memory care all in one location."

By supporting Life Plan Humboldt, Providence is furthering their commitment to enhancing the health and well-being of the communities we serve by providing critical funding to organizations that serve those most in need. In 2022, Providence Humboldt County invested over $23 million in our communities to provide care, housing, food and other critical resources to the poor and vulnerable.

Uh, what are you doing in my house? Oh right, stealing

HUMBOLDT COUNTY SHERIFF'S OFFICE
TRINIDAD – On Sunday, March 31 at about 4:30 a.m., Humboldt County Sheriff's deputies were dispatched to the 500 block of Pacific Court in Trinidad for the report of interrupted burglary with the suspect detained by a homeowner.
Upon arrival, HCSO deputies found one of the homeowners to be detaining the suspect in the front yard of the residence. The suspect was detained by deputies and later identified as 65-year-old James Kelly.
The homeowners reported to deputies that they had been awoken just prior to their 911 call by their dogs barking and the sound of their sliding glass door being opened.
One of the homeowners located Kelly as he appeared to be attempting to exit their property. 911 was called to report the incident and Kelly was detained until law enforcement arrival.
Kelly was placed under arrest by deputies and transported to the Humboldt County Correctional Facility where he was booked on the charge of attempted burglary.

“We’re not sticking something crazy on top of that building,” she assured any historic preservation fans.
Transmitting with the power of a single light bulb, the station should still be able to reach most of Arcata, and maybe points beyond, even as far as McKinleyville and Eureka, “depending on trees, mountains, buildings, all that stuff,” Devaney said. “And we’re of course going to keep our Internet stream. We have no plans to get rid of any of that, so folks everywhere can continue to listen.. But we’re really looking forward to folks being able o tune in in the car and stuff like that.”
It’s been fun not having to be mindful of FCC regulations, but going on the air was always a long-term aspiration, and she believes the station can retain its identity through the expansion to radio.
Adding the broadcast component wasn’t something Devaney was actively pursuing, until she attended a “Grassroots Radio” conference in Charleston, West Virginia last October. “Everyone was talking about this window that was opening up with the FCC to apply for a low-power station,” she said, the last application period having taken place 10 years ago. “So I was like, ‘OK, we gotta apply. We’re ready’.”
A December application was approved on Jan. 4 and the new call letters, KHHA, claimed on Feb. 5. Having a functioning Internet station already in place gave Humboldt Hot Air a leg up in getting the broadcast side going.
The pivotal expansion, she believes, can take place without losing the nascent station’s good-natured and inclusive culture. “We are all sorts of different shows,” she said, “and I definitely want to hold on to that as we move forward.”
The eclectic programming and intimate community orientation is, for Devaney, a callback to her initial immersion in college radio as a child. Her father, the legendary Gregg “Vinny” Devaney, was host of KHSU’s musically adventurous Fogou show, among his many other unpredictable cultural exploits.
“I want to keep us very accessible to everyone who wants a show in the community,” she said. “The goal is that we really reflect all angles of the community, and the shows are very different because of that.”
A glance at the station’s schedule at humboldthotair.org affirms that commitment to a motley mix of community interests, from talk and news to hip hop to dad rock. Personnel include some KRFH and KHSU veterans as well as many zesty, new-to-radio volunteers full of ideas.
“To me, that’s a college radio vibe – there might be two really different shows back-to-back, and you’re like, ‘Whoa, mood change all of a sudden!’ But I’m OK with that. I think that’s fun.”
Just two years in, the tiny station has served as an effective training ground, with three former DJs learning the ropes and going on to work in professional radio.
A big challenge is raising the $15,000 to fund the broadcast transition. There’s an online fundraiser at arcataplayhouse.networkforgood.com/projects/221823-help-us-build-khha-lp-94-7fm-community-radio-in-arcata, and grants are possible. Fundraising will continue through the coming summer.
“I’m feeling really good about how much support we’ve gotten from the community for all of this,” Devaney said. “We’re really excited to be taking this step, but I’m still an advocate for Internet radio too, so just listening is just great also. Just tune in, and if you like a show, text the DJ in the studio and let them know. It means a lot.”
“Remember that it’s not an algorithm,” Devaney said of Humboldt Hot Air. “There’s someone performing for you when you tune in.”
Devaney credits early HHA organizer Danielle Orr and Playhouse Executive Director Jackie Dandeneau for bringing her in on the project. And then there’s her father, who first infused radio waves into her veins way back when.
It definitely connects my heart to my dad, for sure,” she said. “He would love it, I know he would. So it’s sweet.”

Leashed pack walks forming

I am still dressing in layers but it is starting to look like spring is actually here! The shelter is open late on Tuesday and Thursday evenings (until 7 p.m.) to accommodate people who can’t come in on the earlier days. In the darker months those were pretty quiet times but with the later light, we have a second string of volunteers coming by and enjoying getting out with the dogs.

❖ DOGTOWN
Mara Segal

This can also be a great time to come by and meet a dog if you are considering adoption. Here are two for your consideration.

I often mention how our volunteers have favorite dogs. The hard-working staff members at the shelter also find that one or another of the dogs tug at their hearts also.

Miss Kiki is one of those pups! Her staff member friend always makes sure Kiki has gotten a chance to run around or get out for an extra walk on the days that they are there. Kiki is about two years old and is a really nice size at 45 pounds. She is very attentive to her handlers and has done very well with our training methods. She does like her treats, which makes it easy, but she is not pushy about it, understanding what behavior gets the goodies!

One of our volunteers said “It was hard not to smile while walking Kiki – her happiness is contagious! I loved how she kept checking in and coming back for pets. She seems like a dog that would so love to be hanging out and cud-

Kiki knows Sit and Shake and plays a pretty good game of fetch. She did well in the car on an outing with a volunteer. She has a couple of special boyfriends among the other residents and might like another to move in with. Kiki is waiting to meet you!

Another dog that is waiting for his forever home is Spruce. Spruce has been in a foster home for a few weeks, which always gives us additional information that we can’t get from the shelter.

Spruce is an older boy at seven years old, but he should still have half of his life ahead of him! His foster says “Spruce is a quick learner. He knows his name, sit, and how to use the dog door. He’s practicing stay out of the kitchen, look, come and off (he would love to sleep with you!). He’s a great dog, good on a leash, affectionate, and will make a great companion for someone!”

Spruce was one of our go-to dogs for pairing up when he was at the shelter. Right before he went into foster he had a meet and greet with four dogs and did great!

Redwood Pals has also coordinated various pack walks over the years. Currently, my Saturdays start with a morning pack walk in the Arcata Bottom with my girl dogs.

dance of up to 120 people.

The site’s proximity to the Arcata Community Forest was noted by Scott Davies, the permit applicant operating under the business name Ridgefield Events, at an April 4 county Planning Commission hearing.

Davies is a longtime resident of the project site and is locally known for having donated land to the City of Arcata for a 75-acre community forest conservation easement. He is also a member of Arcata’s Planning Commission.

Davies described the project as “low-impact events that bring people to Arcata from around our county, our state and indeed, much of the western U.S.”

He said he and his late wife were married at the property and envisioned it as “a place where people can share their love for each other, as we did, surrounded by stunning natural beauty.”

A vendor team for the events is made up of “local, women-owned small businesses,” Davies continued, employing more than 40 people for each event.

He said the permit’s cut-off time for the amplified music – 9:30 p.m. – is earlier than that of the county and the city, and speakers will face inward, directing sound away from surrounding properties.

Written support for the project includes some of its neighbors and Arcata Mayor Meredith Matthews.

She wrote that businesses like Ridgefield Events “inject essential tourist dollars into our local economy, supporting our hospitality, dining and retail sectors.”

But the written and in-person comments also included concerns about post-event traffic and noise.

Fickle Hill Road resident Andrew Bezella told commissioners he and his wife were “unpleasantly surprised” when they learned of the scale of the wedding events and their inclusion of amplified music.

Another neighbor told commissioners he has similar concerns.

After some discussion, commissioners focused on installation of decibel-reading noise monitors as a permit condition.

Commission Chair Noah Levy noted that Davies has already been hosting small-scale events without complaints and requiring the meters upfront “feels a little excessive.”

Commissioners unanimously approved the permit, adding a requirement to install noise monitoring devices if there are more than two noise complaints per year.

Bayside forestland, McK’ville sidewalk requirement

Also at the meeting, commissioners approved an “after the fact” entire 4.5 acre parcel, amounting to 1,350 trees.

Approval for the clearing and restocking lies with Calfire and the only reason why the county is involved is the project site’s coastal zone location.

But during public comment, Larry Glass, who is executive director of the Northcoast Environmental Center, said he’s familiar with site from living near it and also from eyeing the Security National Servicing corporation’s plan to include it in a housing development project.

Glass doubted the “dead, dying and diseased” tree designation, telling commissioners he observed the logging and “I did not see any dead or dying trees removed from the site, all I saw were vibrant, living, large trees removed.”

But Commissioner Iver Skavdal said Calfire’s approvals “puts the onus” on the agency to manage the logging and replanting.

Commissioner Lorna McFarlane suggested monitoring for invasive plants be done and was the only commissioner to vote against the coastal permit approval.

As for Security National’s housing development plans, Senior Planner Cliff Johnson said the company applied for and got clearance to submit a zoning change application two years ago but one hasn’t been submitted.

He described the request to apply for the change as being “very speculative.”

Finally, the commission unanimously approved subdividing a 2.26 acre McKinleyville parcel into four parcels.

The property is located at the intersection of Azalea Avenue and Sutter Road. An exemption from a county Department of Public Works requirement to develop a sidewalk on a segment of Azalea Avenue north of Sutter Road was requested.

But commissioners stuck with the DPW’s recommendation and approved the subdivision with the sidewalk requirement intact.

Featuring the Humboldt Asian Pacific Islander (HAPI) team members Vicki Ozaki, Amy Uyeki and Sheri Woo, this presentation is part of Bayside Corners’ 2024 “Leading Lights Series” about Humboldt cultural leaders and social change. It will be held at the Bayside Temperance Hall at the corner of Old Arcata and Jacoby Creek roads.

The HAPI team will discuss why there is a need to share Eureka’s past treatment of its Chinese population, and current plans for the Eureka Chinatown Monument.

This project is a collaborative project with the City of Eureka. hapihumboldt.org

Eureka Mayor Kim Bergel said she appreciates the HAPI partnership with the City of Eureka and their dedication to bringing the history of Eureka’s Chinatown to light. She said, “It’s important that we learn from our past to improve how to move forward together.”

The goal for the four-part Leading Lights Series is to increase public awareness about the inspiring work of extraordinary projects and local organizations. This April 18 presentation will be followed by a question and answer period, an ideal time to learn how you can become involved and support HAPI’s work, cultural events and the Eureka Chinatown Monument Project. Drinks will be served.

A $10 donation is requested at the door for each presentation in the Leading Lights Series. To learn more about the series or to pay in advance to save your seat, email baysidecorners@gmail.com or visit baysidecorners.org/donate.

New Hub of learning for young children and Cal Poly students opens

CAL POLY HUMBOLDT
CAL POLY HUMBOLDT — Marking the Week of the Young Child, Cal Poly Humboldt celebrated the official opening of the university's Trinity Early Learning Center, a new hub for two long-standing Cal Poly Humboldt programs that foster a learning environment for young children and university students.

On Saturday, the university held a ribbon-cutting ceremony at the Trinity Early Learning Center on 14th and B streets — the home of the Children's Center, a child care program for the University community and the Child Development Lab, which is a model preschool for local families and future professionals.

Open since August 2023, the Trinity Early Learning Center represents the important roles the programs play in supporting local families and future educators.

The facility includes play yards, educational spaces, support spaces and a commercial kitchen. It also features an observation booth where Child Development students learn to observe children's behaviors and their development.

"The new facility has increased our ability to provide high-quality child care to families in the community, as well as training opportunities for the many student assistants we employ," says Betsy Wilson, director of the Children's Center.

"The facility has supported the Child Development Lab's purpose and vision for building a community of learners," says Hyun-Kyung You, Cal Poly Humboldt Child Development professor and program leader for the Child Development Lab. "It offers on-site seminar spaces and high-tech observation experiences for Child Development practicum and observation students. Our families also have been using the new facility for parent education and sharing information."

The Trinity Early Learning Center is housed in what was originally the Trinity Hospital. Built in 1944, the building served as the hospital until 1972. After being purchased by the University, the Trinity Annex was used as classroom space until the early 2000s, and then repurposed for campus storage.

Despite the toll of age and underuse, the original old-growth redwood structure preserved the Trinity Annex to the degree that renovation was possible. The building retained the aesthetic of the original west side of the building and was rebuilt to complement the existing architecture.

"The project preserved key characteristics of the historic Trinity building while breathing new life into the site and the surrounding community," says Mike Fisher, associate vice president of Facilities Management.

The project was made possible by $8.6 million in funding from the state in 2019. The $13 million project was supported with additional funding coming from the University and other project sources.

About the Children's Center

Since 1971, the Children's Center has continually provided affordable, subsidized, high-quality child care and early education programs for young children of University students, staff, and faculty. The Children's Center is one of the few center-based programs in Humboldt County to provide infant care.

About the Child Development Lab

The first and longest nationally accredited preschool program in Humboldt County, the lab was founded in 1968 by School of Home Economics Professor Emilla Tschantz. In honor of Tschantz, her sister, Cara, made an endowment gift of more than $500,000. Today, the CDL is a model preschool that supports and educates local families and, at the same time, provides Cal Poly Humboldt students with opportunities to teach and learn from children.

Flag | Meserve says city 'chose' to oppose the will of the people

Measure M proponents dispute.

So, based on old-fashioned values of respecting the will of the voters while trying to keep things legal (and Arcata out of trouble), the Earth flag has flown on top at City Hall, the Plaza and the Community Center while the city filed a brief.

On March 30, 2023 and in a later filing, the city asked Humboldt County Superior Court for an impartial ruling in the matter. So, in a cross-filing, did Citizens in Support of Measure M.

Both sides restated their arguments to the court in dense detail. "Measure M seeks to regulate the City's speech, not the speech of its voters... As such, this speech does not constitute the speech of Arcata's voters and must comply with state law," stated a December city filing.

The pro-M side held that in local elections, voters have the power to override federal and state laws via the initiative process. "Our position is that a ballot initiative is protected speech, under the California Constitution," said Measure M's foremost proponent, Dave Meserve.

Last Tuesday, April 2, Judge Tim Canning rendered his opinion. "The Court finds and declares that the measure approved by a majority of voter in the City which requires the City to fly the Earth Flag above the national flag on City-owned flag poles on City-owned property, directly conflicts with mandatory state law, and is therefore not enforceable."

In support of that conclusion, Canning cites California Government Code, Military & Veteran Code and U.S. Code as well as case law in support of the U.S. flag holding the "position of first honor," that being the topmost spot on the flagpole.

Further, states the judge, voters in "political subdivisions" such as a general law city like Arcata can't simply opt out of mandatory state law — but state law itself can be changed via initiatives and propositions.

"There is no legal authority or case precedent authorizing fewer than a majority of state voters to exempt a political subdivision... from complying with mandatory state law," Canning writes.

At last week's City Council meeting, Meserve made clear his displeasure about the ruling "in the favor of the city," as he put it, and the city's role in the matter.

"The name of the case speaks for what this case was about," Meserve said. "The City Of Arcata versus Citizens in Support of Measure M. The citizens of Arcata voted to fly the Earth flag at the top of city flagpoles and the City of Arcata chose to file a suit opposing what the people of Arcata had decided."

He cast state flag laws as dated, having been adopted during the McCarthy-era "Red Scare" era, and that Measure M backers "may" appeal the ruling. He asked that the Earth flag remain at the top of city flagpoles "until this is fully resolved."

At week's end, City Manager Karen Diemer explained the whys of the city's actions.

"Despite any personal beliefs about the ballot measure that an individual councilmember may hold, they as a whole body had to weigh the will of the voters and a strong desire to honor the ballot initiative process with the current state and federal laws," Diemer said. "Through that lens they selected to follow the will of the voters by reordering the flags the day after the election was certified, while simultaneously asking the court to weigh in on the legal conflict that was before them."

She noted that both the city and Measure M supporters "agreed to seek the most efficient process for the court's consideration through a process whereby each 'side' presented briefings for the court to consider."

Continued Diemer, "As stated in the court documents, there were no pertinent facts in dispute. This was simply a request to the courts to offer clarity as to whether the City is prohibited from or allowed/obligated to comply with Measure M based on the fact of law."

She said the City Council will meet and discuss next steps based on the court ruling and the defendant's intent to appeal in closed session during one of their remaining April meetings on April 16 or 17. At that point, they could decide whether to immediately remove the Earth flag or continue to fly it on top pending an appeal.

Villages | Ordinance engagement process set for completion in October

An ordinance is being prepared by the Humboldt County Planning & Building Department to allow the development of tiny house villages and emergency housing villages in the inland and coastal areas of unincorporated Humboldt County.

Background

The Planning & Building Department has been developing a draft Tiny House Villages and Emergency Housing Villages Ordinance in order to achieve implementation measures in the county's 2019 Housing Element of the General Plan. A survey was conducted in 2022 in order to gain an understanding of Humboldt County resident's views on tiny house villages. There were 655 respondents to the survey, and results of the survey are available on the county's Tiny House Villages and Emergency Housing Villages webpage.

The draft ordinance has been reviewed by relevant agencies including Calfire, Humboldt County's Public Works Department and the county's Building and Environmental Health divisions. Comments received have been incorporated into the draft document.

For more information or to review the draft ordinance, please visit the county's Tiny House Villages and Emergency Housing Villages webpage.

Tiny House Village Workshop

ber, located at 825 Fifth St. in Eureka. The Planning Commission meeting will start at 6 p.m. and the agenda, which includes the written staff report can be found on the county's meeting agenda webpage.

Following the workshop, the ordinance will enter the hearing stage where the Planning Commission will make their recommendations to the Board of Supervisors, who will consider those recommendations and make a decision regarding the proposed ordinance. It is currently anticipated that this process will conclude by October. For more information, please visit the county's Tiny House Villages and Emergency Housing Villages webpage.

FIRING CONTROVERSY Popular Arcata High School Principal Ron Perry, left, was dismissed by the school's Board of Trustees in early March, surprising students, parents and teachers alike. AHS students, above, recently marched from the school to the Plaza in protest, and the matter has been well reported on by the AHS Pepperbox newspaper. "We're all so confused," said Audrey, a student. "He's been such a generous and kind person to our school. He cares. He probably knows everyone's name on campus." Another student, Fiona, said the turnover in AHS principals indicates more of a systemic problem. Because it is a personnel matter, the Northern Humboldt Union High School District can't comment, But in an interview with Pepperbox Feature Editor Sasha Love, Superintendent Roger Macdonald told the Pepperbox that Perry wasn't fired, just reassigned. Perry confirmed this in a message, stating, "Though I will not return as Principal of AHS in the fall, I will be honored to remain part of the Northern Humboldt team." He urged students to be their best selves, "I am asking students to make the most of their learning opportunities by arriving to classes on time and engaging in learning every minute of each class period." A change.org petition titled "Reinstate Ron Perry as Principal of Arcata High School " had 688 signatures as of Sunday. Read the Pepperbox's stories at thepepperbox.com. Of the seaside village's whales, trails, donors, volunteers and artists

Dr. Dawn Goley, professor of marine biology at Cal Poly Humboldt, presented a spellbinding, inspirational talk on Gray Whale Migration Ecology and Stewardship in Northern California at last week's Trinidad Civic Club meeting.

Dr. Goley has been studying the majestic baleen whales which migrate off the North Coast since 1996. She described the foraging and migrating habits of the 300 or so mainly humpback, gray and fin whales with the occasional smaller minke and the grand blue whale.

She said that whales in general live to 35 to 40 years and that whale observers can help to improve life spans by staying at least 100 yards away from them.

Dr. Goley and her colleague, Robyn E. Norman, are familiar with many of the returning whales from their distinctive markings observed from study vessels. Whales are threatened by disturbances (vessels coming too close to them), entanglements in fishing lines, ship strikes and pollution.

She says that beachcombers can reduce pollution by regularly picking up trash that would float out to the ocean. Reports of injured mammals or hazards can be reported to marinemamals@humboldt.edu or call 1-877-SOS-WHAL.

In other Trinidad Civic Club news, March Blood Bank coordinator Gail Saunders reported that eager blood donors came to the March event in Murphy's parking area. All of the donors were treated to pizza afterwards.

The success of helping to replenish County blood supplies was great. Another Blood Bank donation event will be scheduled in the fall.

City meetings coming up

Get energized with NEC at the Earth Day Festival in Pierson Park April 21

This is the second part of my conversation with North-coast Environmental Center (NEC) Director Carolyn Griffith to help celebrate Earth Day on April 22. The first Earth Day in 1970 generated excitement to save the planet, and action was taken to create the Environmental Protection Agency, and the Endangered Species and Clean Water Acts within three years. I thought it would be interesting to get an update 54 years later.

Dana Utman: What does Earth Day mean to you and how has it evolved since it was first created in 1970?

Carolyn Griffith: This is an interesting question because as someone who was born in 1982, Earth Day has always just been a thing. It's almost like a Hallmark holiday, Valentine's Day or Mother's Day. I do like to celebrate it. At the NEC we think of it as our conceptual birthday, but I don't like to put too much focus on just one day. Just like your mother shouldn't just have one day that you treat her like she's special, we should think about how we depend on, interact with, and respect the Earth every day. I can say, as someone who gets a lot of (public relations) emails, that it has definitely evolved into a greenwashing opportunity for major corporations, which I think would sadden the founders of Earth Day. We'll be celebrating this year at the Earth Day Festival in Pierson Park on 4/21. It's the kick-off for the Decolonizing Economics Summit and there will be music, skill shares, food and general camaraderie to energize us for the work ahead.

In the year 2000 NEC Director Tim McKay, believed that population growth, forest conservation, water quality and salmon preservation would continue to be prominent concerns. Do you agree?

We have an archive of EcoNews dating back to the late '70s and it's always amazing to me to read about issues that we are still working on, things like salmon preservation, water quality and forest protection, which are all very linked. Many of the same issues that Tim and others were highlighting back then are still at the basis of our work, which is a good reminder of the challenges we face, especially when we are swimming upstream against the status quo and monied interests. I would amend "population growth" to "consumer culture" because there is some evidence that population is plateauing, but our consumption habits and the industries that support/create them show no signs of stopping, which is incredibly damaging. I also think that "population growth" often unfairly points the finger at developing nations when it's the actions and consumption habits of wealthier nations, like the U.S., Russia, Japan, and China, that have sent us to the brink of climate collapse. Fossil fuel production and consumption, plastics, pesticides, all of these affect water quality and fish, and depending on where facilities are located, also forests. Certainly climate change is having a profound effect on forests. So yeah, I think those particular issues are still at the heart of many of the efforts we, and our allies, are involved in, just viewed through the lens of climate change and environmental justice.

❖ CLIMATE CHANGE AND YOU

What are your predictions for the environment of the planet in 20 years?

No matter what we do at this point, there will be changes to the environment that were set in motion by human behavior over the last 150 years. So regardless of how optimistic I am feeling, it's easy to predict a future with higher sea levels, hotter temperatures, and more unpredictable weather. The severity of the changes depends on us. My predictions of the future honestly fluctuate with the day and depend on how much faith I have in our ability to change. And by change I don't just mean changing how our cars are powered or where our energy comes from. If that energy is still powering industries that enrich a few at the expense of the rest of us and our EVs (with their toxic tires) just take us to and from the jobs whose only value is to make money, then we won't be addressing the problems that are at the heart of environmental degradation: greed, profiteering, and loss of connection to the natural world. We need a philosophical transformation away from hierarchical systems that prioritize individual comfort and individual gains over the collective good. That will involve all of us fighting like hell against the tyranny of convenience and the pull of the status quo; we simply cannot keep living the way we are living. Extreme weather and "natural disasters" are showing that, and in a way are forcing us to live differently and more communally as we have to rely on each other more. But on days when I believe we can do it, I imagine a future that is slower, more nature-based and collective in which we all have the privilege of taking part in food production or gathering, in which power (both electricity and political power) is collectively held and controlled, in which we have more agency over where and how we live, and we don't have to rely on cars to get us where we need to go. This will involve work, shared responsibility and imagination. Hopefully we are up to it because the changes we need will have to come from the bottom up. If we can't do that, then my predictions for the environment in 20 years are pretty dire.

Do you believe that human rights and worker rights are important to address economic and environmental justice?

Humans are a part of the environment, and the environment is part of humans, so we can't address harm to the environment without addressing human rights. When we look at the entities that are causing environmental harm, they are very often the same entities that are mistreating vulnerable humans, whether they are their workers or their neighbors, so the plight of the environment and that of workers are linked. Just as an example, pollution from oil refineries in the Bay Area affects the environment through air and water pollution, which then impacts those – both human and more than human – with the least voice who often have the least agency to push back against it or move somewhere with cleaner air or water. Which means they are the ones to suffer the worst consequences of pollution. Workers are often the first to sound the alarm about harmful practices of industry and we need to make sure they feel safe enough and empowered to do that. It is often due to economic pressure – and the need to keep a job so they can keep a roof over their head and feed their families – that people accept the untenable conditions they are in and don't speak up. Environmentalists need to expand their work to include environmental and economic justice, or we'll never make any progress.

Carolyn Griffith

Is it too late to stop the negative effects of climate change?

Well, I don't think it's ever too late to change things. There are many benefits to action that can be very fulfilling – and fun!

Happy Earth Day everyone!

“Is your name Google? Because you're everything I've been searching for.”

Love
Love in a bar
Love in this bar

We've seen hundreds of ignitions over 134 years in the Logger Bar and some wild misfires.

There has been one fight in this bar since I've owned it. It was over a girl.

You might say...”that's not original,” but I think it is. It is always immediate, intimate, personal, urgent, timeless.

If we are so good at love, if we have figured it all out, we wouldn't continue to sing about it, dance about it, write about it and make glorious theatre about it. I think so much is written about love because everyone wants it, but no one truly understands it. It is an ongoing human mystery. Logger Love Stories is inspired by encounters that have happened in the bar. Some of them fall into deep human comedy. Some of them just fall deep. All of them have the possibility to resonate in our lives.

We promise you a rocking good time that will be full of "feels," laughs and live music. Shows start at 6 p.m. (Sunday at 4 p.m.) so you don't have to stumble in the

A mind-blowing percussion performance

CAL POLY HUMBOLDT

CAL POLY – The Cal Poly Humboldt Department of Dance, Music and Theatre presents Contemporary Music for Percussion performed by the Cal Poly Humboldt Percussion Ensemble, Spanish Gypsy and Mexican folkloric music performed by the Cal Poly Humboldt Marimba Ensemble, and the Intricate Rhythms of the Anlo-Ewe of Ghana, West Africa performed by the World Percussion Group.

Join us for this celebration of global percussion directed by Howard Kaufman on Saturday, April 13 at 8 p.m. in Fulkerson Recital Hall at Cal Poly Humboldt. Concert tickets are $10 general, $5 children, and free for Cal Poly Humboldt students with ID.

Tickets may be purchased at the door or in advance at centerarts.humboldt.edu.

In the first half of the program, the Cal Poly Humboldt Percussion Ensemble will feature the North Coast premiere of Persistence, an exciting and grooving contemporary piece composed by Brian Blume. This quintet features a mixture of pitched and unpitched percussion instruments through ever-changing time signatures.

Marimbas, and crotales provide the pitches, and concert toms, bass drum, tam tam, shakers, cymbals, wind chimes, and a variety of metallic effects of resonant, semi-resonant and trashy timbres account for the non-pitched instruments.

The Ensemble will also perform Clapping Music by Steve Reich, and Warthog #3, a composition by Austin Wrinkle using East Indian rhythms and improvisation.

Next up is the Cal Poly Humboldt Marimba Ensemble performing an arrangement of La Bamba, the popular Son Jarocho piece from Vera Cruz, Mexico, and Espani Cani, a famous instrumental Spanish piece of pasodoble music by Pascual Marquina Narro (1873–1948).

Following intermission, the World Percussion Group will perform two traditional pieces from the Anlo-Ewe people of South-Eastern Ghana, West Africa. Vulolo, a processional piece in 12/8 time and Gahu, an imported piece from Nigeria, that has become part of the standard repertoire of the Anlo-Ewe.

These pieces use two-toned iron bells (gankogui), rattles (axatsevu), and peg tuned barrel shaped drums (sogo, kidi, kaganu), along with a five foot-tall lead drum called Atsimevu.

This music will surely make you want to dance in your seat!

EUREKA SYMPHONY

EUREKA – Music Director and Conductor Carol Jacobson will lead the Eureka Symphony in its spring concert “Distinctive Voices,” at the Arkley Center for the Performing Arts on the evenings of Friday, April 12 and Saturday, April 13 at 7:30 p.m. The concert will feature solo performances with the orchestra by the two winners of the Young Artist Showcase, Sierra Paliaga, piano, and Aurora Pitts, violin, and orchestral works by Emmanuel Chabrier and William Grant Still.

Aurora Pitts

The concert opens with España, Rhapsody for Orchestra, by the French composer Emmanuel Chabrier. Chabrier worked as a civil servant until he was almost 40, while playing an active part in the Parisian artistic scene and writing music on the side. When he finally committed to composing music full time in 1880, his lack of an academic background turned out to be an advantage, allowing him to compose exactly as he wished. In 1882 he traveled to Spain, where he was entranced by Spanish music and dance. Combining traditional melodies with themes of his own, he created an exuberant piece that might make you think of a popular ditty from the 1950s, if you are old enough to remember Perry Como!

Next Aurora Pitts will join the orchestra for the Finale of Max Bruch's first violin concerto. Bruch, a German Romantic composer, wrote more than 200 works, including three violin concertos. This one is not only the best known of his three, it is one of the most popular violin concertos in the repertoire. If you work your way up ClassicFM's ranking of the fifteen greatest violin concertos, big names like Mozart, Brahms, Tchaikovsky, and Beethoven will flash by, culminating Max Bruch's concerto in first place. The energetic third movement follows an introductory opening movement and a lushly melodic second movement. The concerto was premiered in 1866, with Bruch himself conducting.

Aurora (Rory) Pitts is 16 years old and in her junior year at Arcata High. She began studying violin at age 3 with Terry Kramer and has been studying with Terrie Baune since age ten. She studies piano with Daniela Mineva. Rory is the concertmaster of the ArMack Orchestra, has been a member of the Eureka Symphony since 2021, and is a member of the Bach On Chamber Orchestra. She serves as choir director for the First Presbyterian Church of Eureka. Rory has sung as a soloist with the Eureka Symphony and the University Singers, was a piano soloist with the All Seasons Orchestra in 2018, and has been a frequent performer with HLOC since age four.

Next, first place winner Sierra Paliaga will play the opening movement of Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 2. Although it was published second, this is actually the first piano concerto Beethoven completed. He brought preliminary notes with him when he moved to Vienna from Bonn in 1792, and seized the opportunity to present the completed composition when he made his debut before the Viennese public in March 1795.

Though an early work, this sparkling piece hints at his later development, with rapid alternation of contrasting themes and the juxtaposition of forte and pianissimo passages. Chosen by Beethoven in part to showcase his own piano playing, it is a perfect choice for a young artist like Sierra to show her artistry as well.

A Humboldt County local, Sierra Paliaga will graduate from Arcata High School this June. She began piano lessons at age 9 with Yumi Watanabe and has studied with Dr. Daniela Mineva since age 12.

Sierra plays piano and percussion in the ArMack Orchestra and has sung and played ukulele in Valentunes. Next year, plans to enter a college on the West Coast, majoring in biology and continuing to play piano.

Sierra Paliaga

Outside of music, Sierra races with the Humboldt Composite Mountain Biking Team and enjoys organizing events as a NorCal Girls Riding Together Ambassador to get more girls on bikes across Northern California. She is also passionate about trail advocacy and environmental conservation and is involved in several local and statewide organizations.

Following intermission, the Eureka Symphony will present Symphony No. 2 in G minor, Song of a New Race, by William Grant Still. Still, often described as the “Dean of African-American composers,” is best known for his first symphony, the African-American, from 1930.

His second symphony should be heard as well in order to understand Still's vision. A blues theme opens the first movement, followed by a more classical second theme. The second movement combines romantic string passages with folk-like instrumental solos, illustrating what an integrated society might sound like. In the third movement we hear a fast, energetic movement with jazz rhythms, suggesting Black music's enlivening effect on modern life.

You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (800) 683-2468 or visit this Internet Web site: www.servicelinkASAP.com, using the Trustee Sale number assigned to this file, T.S. #23196-RT. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. NOTICE TO TENANT: You may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call (800) 683-2468, or visit this internet website www.servicelinkASAP.com, using the file number assigned to this case 23196-RT to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid, by remitting the funds and affidavit described in Section 2924m(c) of the Civil Code, so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder", you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. 'A Photographic Exploration of Wigi' reveals bay's wonders

WIGI (HUMBOLDT BAY) – The first thing to know about Aldaron Laird's new book, A Photographic Exploration of Wigi (currently called Humboldt Bay) is in the title. Wigi is the Soulatluk (Wiyot language) name for the bay presently known by its settler name. It's pronounced Wi-GI, accent on the second syllable with a hard G.

Laird collaborated with Wiyot tribal members who provided their Soulatluk place names for the book project. (Hear place names pronounced by Wiyot People at wiyot.us/450/3638/A-Photographic-Exploration-of-Wigi.) It is published by the Cal Poly Humboldt University Press.

As one of Laird's collaborators, historian Jerry Rohde wrote, "For decades, Aldaron has walked the shores of the bay, climbed its nearby sand dunes, and kayaked its entire periphery, taking over 25,000 photos that reveal the beauty of Wigi as it might appear in some magical, glimmering dream. From those thousands of photos, Aldaron selected 119 for this book. For each photo he kept, he discarded 209 others, which means that of those 25,000 images, he used less than one percent. We might think that taking all those photos required a tremendous amount of work, but it soon becomes clear that Aldaron did not work on this book, he lived and breathed its very essence, so that every photo he did select opens like a window, showing us yet another wonderful facet of Wigi, this place of 10,000 smaller places where land and water so subtly, so strikingly meet."

Wiyot Tribe member Marnie Atkins also added a foreword, and Jerry Martien is included.

Though he didn't know it, Laird began working on what would become the book back in 2010, when he took to Wigi's waters as part of his Sea Level Rise Vulnerability Assessment project.

As part of mapping 102 miles of shoreline via kayak and on foot in ensuing years, he accumulated the mass of photos from which the ones in the book were winnowed.

The choices were agonizing for Laird and his collaborators, as each is as breathtaking as the last. He uses 200 of those not selected as wallpaper shots for his computer.

"Sometimes a photo pops up and I go, 'Wow I can't believe that's not in the book!'"

All photos in the book are available for custom order. You'll be able to view them close up during Laird's photography exhibit July 13 at Morris Graves Museum in Eureka. Laird will also appear at the upcoming Humboldt Bay Symposium.

A Photographic Exploration of Wigi (currently called Humboldt Bay) is available at Eureka Books (with a book signing May 6), Booklegger, Northtown Books, Blake's Books, and at Wiyot Tribe's Da Gou Rou Lowi' (the ongoing return of all) Cultural Center, Humboldt Arts Council-Morris Graves Museum of Art, Arcata Marsh Interpretive Center, Holly Yashi Store. Get a huge break on a new E-Bike through RCEA

RCEA

HUMBOLDT – The Redwood Coast Energy Authority's local electric bicycle voucher program is underway.

This voucher program aims to cut E-Bike prices and all RCEA customers can apply for a voucher valued between $150 to $350. Income-qualified RCEA customers can receive a $500 to $700 voucher, and eligible adaptive E-Bike riders may receive a $1,000 voucher.

Using E-Bikes instead of cars to go to work, visit friends and run errands can help reduce the number of cars on the road. This in turn cuts down on fossil fuel use, air pollution and greenhouse gas emissions.

RCEA staff expect high demand for these E-Bike vouchers and worked with local groups to help income-qualified residents respond quickly at program launch time.

Another program goal is to help customers buy quality, durable E-Bikes that can be maintained and repaired locally.

Voucher holders can purchase eligible standard, adaptive and cargo E-Bikes at one of five participating Humboldt bike shops: Adventure's Edge, N.E.R.D. Scooters, Pacific Outfitters, Sport & Cycle, and Revolution Bicycles.

Visit redwoodenergy.org/e-bikes-information to apply for an RCEA E-Bike voucher, learn about income requirements, and see voucher program terms and conditions.

BIKE THE MARSH Join FOAM Boardmember Andy Feinstein and his trusty metal steed Ernie on April 14 for a "Second Sunday Cycling Tour" of the Arcata Marsh. This 90-minute tour will focus on the "Three W's of the Marsh": wetlands, wildlife and wastewater treatment. Andy plans to ride around the perimeter of the facility (not entering the Corp Yard), including the head works, treatment marshes, oxidation ponds, and enhancement marshes, while explaining their functions and relationships. Meet at 2 p.m. at the Arcata Marsh Interpretive Center. Bring your own bike; all ages welcome. Heavy rain cancels. (707) 826-2359
